NGAONE - EDITORIAL

GOOD tidings are never far-off when you follow the institution toe-to-toe. I welcome you to this fourth issue of NGAONE Newsletter your one-stop-shop for developing and running issues at your favourite University, ZEGU.

The main highlight of the publication will focus on the historic milestone of the 6th ZEGU graduation ceremony that was held on the 2nd September at the main campus in Bindura, where a total of 400 graduands were capped by the Chancellor Professor Ezekiel Handiwangu Guti.

It was a marvel to witness!

The graduation came at a time when the University was still celebrating its 10th Anniversary, a milestone that will continue to spur the institution in future endeavours.

That being said, it is my great pleasure to announce to you that the varsity now has a new second Pro Vice-Chancellor. Most are probably wondering who this new PVC is, but without further ado, the new ZEGU PVC is none other than Professor Innocent Chirisa, who joins the institution having worked for various well-to-do institutions in the mold of the University of Zimbabwe (UZ), University of Free State (South Africa) amongst a very long list. Prof Chirisa comes on board with a wealth of experience that will surely open new chapters for the institution, as he is already in 'work mode'.

This publication will not have done justice if we don't touch on the various projects that are currently having a major impact on the face uplift of the varsity. You will all be pleased to know that a new Arts block has been added to the one you know and it was also built on record time (one month), as the institution spreads its tentacles on campus.

Not just that, the bigger project is already in full swing, as the construction of the new Administration block, whose ground breaking ceremony was overseen by the institution's stakeholder (the church) led by Bishops, who were in turn led by Senior Bishop Nelson Guti, paving the way for what already seems like a state-of-the-art building in the making.

The features of the new admin block are plenty, but one highlight which stands out despite the building having to meet a modern administration block is chamber where conventions and meetings would take place. Very few if any varsities will be able to match the designs and features of this upcoming building.

Now, for the 'book worms', the ZEGU library is the place to be given how it looks both from the outside and the inside. It's a marvel! The facilities are compared to none. On top of that, a 24 hour e-library is now fully functional for student's convenience. The University is surely moving with times.

Beloved readers, it is with great pleasure that I take this opportunity to welcome you all to this exciting fourth issue of NGAONE Newsletter, your one-stop-shop for developing and running issues at your favourite University.

Enjoy...

ZEGU APPOINTS NEW PRO VICE CHANCELLOR ACADEMIC AFFAIRS

Professor Innocent Chirisa appointed to the post

Professor Innocent Chirisa

The Zimbabwe Ezekiel Guti University (ZEGU) management and staff cordially welcome Professor Innocent Chirisa, who joins the ZEGU family from the University of Zimbabwe (UZ), where he held various posts, chief amongst them, Chairman in the then Department of Rural and Urban Planning, UZ (2016-18), the Deputy Dean of the former Faculty of Social Studies, UZ (2016-2019). However, Professor Chirisa is not new to the ZEGU family, as he is currently the Vice-Chairman of the ZEGU Council; hence, like a duck takes to water; he is expected to get the ground running in no time. The wealth of experience garnered since his hay days at the Harare Polytechnic College, UZ and the University of the Free State in South Africa, among others, will go a long way in spurring the institution's mantra of "Developing A Total Person and Promoting Entrepreneurship". By opening its doors with welcoming arms to Professor Chirisa; the Chancellor Ezekiel Handinawangu Guti-led institution is assured of benefiting from the strategic planner and manager, an innovator, chief liaison officer, communicator and advisor. ZEGU looks to immensely tap knowledge from Professor Chirisa's wealth of experience. The ZEGU family wishes Professor Chirisa all the best as he embarks on this exciting journey, where his efforts will be complemented by like-minded progressive professionals. From the ZEGU family: 'wishing you all the best' in the new chapter Professor Chirisa.

Education Careers Fair

Pupils inspired at Education Career's Fair

PUPILS following through the ZEGU station enquiries

STUDENTS, who attended the Chitungwiza District Education Career's Fair held at Zengeza 1 High School on the 1st of July 2022, swarmed the Zimbabwe Ezekiel Guti University (ZEGU) exhibition stand to get an appreciation of programmes on offer, and the much-needed Career Guidance from the Chancellor Professor Ezekiel Handinawangu Guti-led University.

The ZEGU stand was a hive of activity as A' level students and teachers alike jostled to get the attention from staff representing the university at the Fair.

What was interesting is that a number of students already knew the university, as some had relatives who had attained their Degrees at the institution, while some confessed to have heard about ZEGU through social media.

Currently, the Bindura based institution is enrolling students for its August 2022 Intake, which gives those who missed the March 2022 deadline a chance at enrolling with the fastest-growing higher and tertiary education institution in the country and region. ZEGU, whose pay-off line is "Developing a total Person and Promoting Entrepreneurship", caught the imagination of the young students, who gave an appreciation for the need to grow and become not just professional workers, but also employers in their own right.

This coupled by the spiritual uplifting of students spurs the institution's quest to deliver into the world complete students who are conscious of the need to grow spiritually, while also sharpening the inner entrepreneurial aspect of their lives so as to become tomorrow's business game-changers in the country's socio-economic facets.

Zeroing on Harare's dormitory town, ZEGU has its foot print firmly set in Chitungwiza, with a learning centre already operational in Chitungwiza.

Currently, the centre in Chitungwiza accommodates the Faculty of Business, Economics and Accounting.

A lot of developments from ZEGU are on the horizon for the community of Chitungwiza.

ZEGU also runs educational facilities and centres in Harare, Chipenge and Chiredzi, with the main campus being located in Bindura, Mashonaland Central Province.

CHITUNGWIZA

Chitungwiza warms up to ZEGU

THE ZAOGA (FiF) family in Chitungwiza has expressed confidence and a willingness to further its relationship with the Zimbabwe Ezekiel Guti University (ZEGU), a recent tour of the church's province has showed.

Popular amongst all age groups due to the nature of its programmes, state-of-the-art facilities and recently ushered short-courses, ZEGU continues to serenade the Chitungwiza fraternity, which has also been visible in the growth of the recently established Chitungwiza Learning Centre, not more than 2-years ago.

The Chitungwiza learning centre has been offering business, commerce and accounting classes to Block-Release students, a factor that has made the University popular amongst residents in the province.

It has to be noted though that students who are still fresh from high school made lots of enquiries during the tour, while a sizeable number went ahead to fill their enrollment forms in anticipation of ZEGU August Intake, which by now is in full swing.

Marketing teams were divided into three (3) so as to have a wider outreach on a busy Sunday, as congregants gathered to worship the Lord Jesus Christ.

This saw some teams visiting St. Marys District, Seke North and South, respectively.

The men were mostly interested in short-courses such as Humanitarian Aid, while others preferred to enrol for the Humanities and Social Sciences (Social Work).

Due to the success of the Chitungwiza visit, the marketing team has indicated that more visits will be made to Chitungwiza in the near foreseeable future so as to spread the ZEGU brand, not only to congregants of the ZAOGA (FiF) church, but to the community at large.

ZEGU has been making strides to grow its learning centre in the Chitungwiza community, with two visits having been made already to Harare's dormitory town between March and June. The first (visit) was at an exhibition in Makoni, while the other was at a Career's Day in Zengeza.

The recent visit, being the third, means the institution is taking the Chitungwiza community seriously and plans are to obviously cement its place as the leading higher education institution, which also strives not only to churn out professional after professional, but also developing a total person and promoting entrepreneurship.

ZEGU is already present in Bindura, Harare, Chipinge and Chiredzi in the low veld.

ZEGU Law School hosts RAUL Winter School

THE Faculty of Laws was the proud host of this year's RAUL Winter School, a programme which brings together law students from various universities, undergoing training in various aspects.

Home to a state-of-the-art 'Moot Court', widely regarded as the best on the land, it was inevitable that ZEGU was to play host to the popular winter school spearheaded by the Linden University from Sweden.

GOOD Times

ZEGU's 'MidasTouch', boon for students

GOOD times never stop rolling at ZEGU, as the institution has struck gold for accounting students, who will now only have to attain their ACCA qualification in two years, instead of the normal four (years) after the institution linked its Bachelor of Commerce Honours in Accounting with the former.

Driven by a commitment to ensure that programmes are relevant to respective industries, ZEGU has tailor-made its own entrepreneurial environment through students and organizations for development and through the popular 'Matarendu Model' that has been aligned to programmes on offer to the internationally recognized minimum bodies of knowledge.

This has over the years made every graduate possess the minimum expected skills and competencies for their respective trades.

Speaking in an interview with the NGAONE crew, Faculty of Business, Economics and Accounting Dean, Dr Marembo expressed optimism at the new development, especially the fact that students will have to finish their ACCA studies in a few years' time.

“The ZEGU Accounting programme has received six (6) exemptions from ACCA. ACCA has 3 levels and the exemptions waves off level 1 and part level 2. So, if a student finishes with ZEGU, he or she starts ACCA at level 2 and instead of finishing ACCA in 3 or 4 years now, (the student) can do so in 2 years,” said Dr Marembo.

He added that the development will now be expected to spur the university's chances to lure a huge market share of students with regards the enrollment in the faculty.

“I believe that our programme linkage with ACCA may spell confidence to prospective students. This may be positive for enrollment,” he said.

GONE GREEN

ZEGU goes green

AS the globe drives towards sustainable sources of power and a green economy, ZEGU has fully adopted environmental and climate friendly sources of energy after the successful solarisation of its Harare campus.

The move which has been long time coming for the Chancellor Ezekiel Handiwangu Guti-led institution is a positive move in as far as the use of sustainable energy sources is concerned and especially considering the drive by the Second Republic and relevant stakeholders in concerted efforts to meet set Nationally Determined Contributions (NDCs).

ZEGU's move to solarise the Harare campus which is mostly used for Block-Release classes comes hard on the heels of the main campus solarisation programme in Bindura.

Higher learning institutions leading the way in the climate change fight has never become so critical, as these institutions are expected to lead the way in research on adaptations and mitigation methods against the biggest threat yet to human existence.

The development also cushions the institutions against recent erratic power outages that have bedeviled the nation over the last couple of years due to various reasons, chief amongst them climate change that has affected rainfall patterns and malfunctioning of electricity generators at the country's major electricity supply source, in Hwange.

Addressing delegates, who attended the colourful 6th ZEGU graduation ceremony in Bindura, the Minister of Higher and Tertiary Education, Innovation Science and Technology Development Professor Dr Amon Murwira commended ZEGU for going green as the move would enable the smooth flow of classes.

"I am also conscious of the "going green" environmentally friendly and ecologically sustainable practices and lifestyles championed by ZEGU, as exemplified by the state-of-the-art solar system that affords uninterrupted power and wifi for the University community," he said.

Universities, as centres for research, are widely expected to lead the revolution from fossil fuels to clean sources of energy, as the nation and globe at large seek to reduce global warming.

ZEGU AT MOI

ZEGU reaches out to 'Wise Man'

ZEGU is proud to have been one of the many exhibitors at the inaugural ZAOGA FiF Ministries International WISE MAN Conference, which ran from the 15th – 18th September 2022 at AMFCC, in Harare, where church delegates from across the country and globe, at large, convened.

Amongst the many activities, the ZEGU team was kept busy by enquiries from locals and international visitors from nations across the continent namely Angola, Cameroon, South Africa, and Cote d'Ivoire, respectively, which dovetailed with the institution's internationalization drive.

The new programmes being offered by ZEGU such as the Master of Science in Development Studies, Master of Education Leadership and Management, Master of Education Psychology, Master of Education in Sociology, and a host of other programmes on offer proved popular, with delegates at the four (4) day event.

The Wise Man Conference ran under the theme: “Moulding Today's Man for Excellence”.

PROGRESS

Increase in Graduands, a sign of progress

ZEGU GRADUATION CEREMONY - A cut away within the ceremony

THE Zimbabwe Ezekiel Guti University (ZEGU) is basking in glory as growth prospects continue to exceed expectations after 400 Graduands were capped by the Chancellor, Professor Ezekiel Guti, signifying a 57.7 percent (%) increase compared to the prior graduation where 230 students graduated.

The ZAOGA FiF institution has set milestones over the years as the only pentecostal-run university in the country, since its formation in 2012.

Speaking during the graduation ceremony at a time when the institution is celebrating its 10th Anniversary, ZEGU Council Chairman expressed optimism about the growth prospects of the institution, saying good corporate governance had sustained operations.

“The number of students graduating today attests to the growth of our university, which we proudly marvel in our hearts.

“As the University Council, we are truly happy with the progress that we are seeing in the development and operations of the University. I am pleased to advise that the University is managing to adhere to the principles of good corporate governance in all its operations,” said Dr Fredrick Kasese.

He added that it is high time partnerships between government and the private sector (education) engaged even more, so as to counter the after-effects of the COVID- 19 pandemic and the economy.

“This is the time for us to concentrate efforts on unlocking the systemic bottlenecks which have inhibited progress in Private Universities.

“We can no longer overlook what has been laid bare by this pandemic and the economic dictates. Empowering our lecturers, staff and students is an imperative that requires strategic partnership with the government and other stakeholders,” he added.

In a speech read on his behalf, Higher and Tertiary Education Innovation Science and Technology Development, Honourable Professor Dr Amon Murwira encouraged private players in the education sector to emulate the feet made by ZEGU.

“Providing quality higher education is not just a preserve of the government alone, but a collective responsibility involving both public and private providers.

“In this respect, I applaud ZEGU, a private and wholly indigenous university built by Zimbabweans who desire to make a positive contribution to their nation and beyond,” said Hon Murwira.

Dr Murwira commended ZEGU for implementing timeous interventions that saved lots of lives during the pandemic, through research, innovation, and partnerships, which in turn empowered communities to fend off the severe effects of the pandemic.

“I am informed that academics and students from ZEGU have embraced internationalisation and positioned themselves to drive research and innovation through partnerships with local and international players.

“A case in point is that of ZEGU's COVID- 19 innovations that hogged the limelight through their deployment in averting a health crisis in densely populated settlements of Mandebvu and Epworth.

“The full-body baths and washing stations installed and the entrepreneurial capacities developed in the community left the communities empowered,” added Dr Murwira.

Of the 400 graduands, 235 were female.

Apart from the Bindura campus, ZEGU has a campus in Harare and learning centres across the country.

ZEGU's BIG VISION

shaping up to become a recognized and...

ZEGU is shaping up to become a recognized and leading research institute, Council chairperson Dr Fredrick Kasese has said.

Delivering his speech at the recently held 6th ZEGU graduation ceremony held at the University's main campus in Bindura, Dr Kasese said the apparatus is already in place for the institution to surge ahead, while also complementing the Second Republic in the implementation of Education 5.0.

“Currently, the drive is towards consolidating the institution as a strong research university, which by extension, means paying serious attention to the operationalization of Education 5.0, through innovations, curriculum reform and a whole new transitioning to the transformation of knowledge acquired into goods and services,” said Dr Kasese.

He added that the Council is satisfied with developments at the institution.

“As the University Council, we are truly happy with the progress that we are seeing in the development and operations of the University.

“I am pleased to advise that the University is managing to adhere to the principles of good corporate governance in all its operations,” he added.

Through the ZEGU Centre for Research and Development (CRD), the University and notable partners has embarked on a number of ambitious projects that will not only benefit the ZEGU, but the country at large and these include; Development of a Commercial Service Centre in Bindura to service ZEGU students and staff and the local community and establishment, and growing of a special and affordable high protein livestock feed (duckweed) that will be a game changer in the livestock feeding industry (Currently the duckweed is being harvested from the ten (10) initial ponds that were constructed at the main campus), among a host of other innovations.

Addressing delegates at the same ceremony, ZEGU Vice Chancellor, Professor Christopher James Chetsanga said the University's sound foundation provides an atmosphere conducive for innovation and preparation of students for life after their university studies.

“We have a mandate to be innovative and we are happy to be creating solutions and employment opportunities for the university's graduates and community members in Zimbabwe,” said Prof. Chetsanga.

ZEGU is developing new programmes in line with the heritage-based Education 5.0. ZEGU's aim is to grow and expand its programmes-qualifications mix inclusive of programmes at Diploma, Degree and Postgraduate levels.

Recently, nine (9) programmes were accredited to the University by the Zimbabwe Chamber of Higher Education (ZIMCHE).

ZEGU HOSTS SIXTH GRADUATION CEREMONY

The Zimbabwe Ezekiel Guti University 6th Graduation Supplement

THE long wait is over as the Zimbabwe Ezekiel Guti University (ZEGU) successfully held its 6th Graduation Ceremony, with 430 Honours Degree graduands getting capped by the Chancellor, Professor Ezekiel Handinawangu Guti at the institution's Bindura campus, recently.

Graduands were coming from the institution's four Faculties namely the Faculty of Business, Economics and Accounting; Faculty of Humanities, Education and Social Sciences; Faculty of Health, Sciences and Technology and the Faculty of Law, respectively.

ZAOGA FiF church leadership, current and past Government ministers, corporate representatives, and most importantly, the community and its leadership were present to witness the sparkling event.

Despite the venue being filled to the brim, from as early as 07:00Hrs,

- ZEGU GRADUATION CEREMONY -
A cut away within the ceremony (BELOW)

the ceremony was held under strict COVID- 19 regulations, the graduation ceremony is a symbol of how far and where the ZEGU brand is coming from.

It is undoubtedly through the FAITH in the most high Lord, sheer hard work and a willingness to produce quality born again, with dignity and integrity.

The Guest of Honour, Professor Guti, lit the auditorium with his presence, as the visibly anxious graduands and visitors sat expectantly for the man of God to start capping students after speeches by government representatives and ZEGU leadership.

A key development to take note from the ceremony is obvious the increase in number of graduands as compared to the last ceremony that was held in the year 2020.

This is an indication of how the country is warming up to the institution thus giving thumbs up to Professor Guti-led institution.

Without taking anything away from other faculties; It was a spectacle witnessing the first ever Law graduands being capped by Chancellor Professor Guti, as the institution heads into a new and exciting era, especially for the Faculty of Law.

ZEGU prides itself in being the only private University in the country that is certified to offer the Bachelor of Laws Honours Degree (LLB). For the institution, it's a milestone, one which the students themselves have taken it upon themselves to lift the University's flag up high, internationally.

One of the graduands, Nyasha Chiramba, is well known for leading the country's Universities Moot Court team on a trip to Amsterdam, which goes a long way to show the calibre of students being churned out by ZEGU.

Still on external engagements, the corporate sector's presence during the day also goes a long to show the seal of approval from the business community. A lot of engagements with various stakeholders during the day are expected to yield results that will boost ZEGU, as an institution. Surely, given the infrastructure developments that have taken place and are still taking place at the ZEGU Bindura campus, the institution is heading the right way, with government officials giving the much-needed compliments for a job well done.

Stakeholders' presence really lifted the institution on the day and more engagement opportunities are already in the pipeline with a number of events still lined up on the ZEGU calendar before curtains fall on the year 2022.

Kudos to corporates who chipped in with 'Prizes' for outstanding students namely, ZB Bank, Chartered Accountants Academy (CCA), Fuser-Tech, Bindura Nickel Corporation (BNC) and others who played a pivotal on the occasion.

Blessed with a state-of-the-art library, a Law Moot Court comparable to none, a well-equipped computer lab, qualified lecturers, and most importantly, the Lord's blessing, amongst a long list of enabling infrastructure and conditions, ZEGU is certainly on the right path to achieving its goal of 'Developing a Total Person, Promoting Entrepreneurship.

INTERNATIONAL CALL

ZEGU's diaspora calling

IN its efforts to facilitate the recruitment of international students and in line with Government's directive for the Internationalisation of all universities, ZEGU has already made in-roads after embarking on a maiden recruitment assignment to Namibia, recently, as 32 prospective students are in queue for recruitment.

Mandated to lead and facilitate all international aspects of the University, the University's marketing and international relations department is already in full gear auctioning the internationalisation strategy; building and maintaining the institution's partnerships.

With an avalanche of opportunity presented by Namibia; the first visit of the country saw the marketing team setting up an exhibition stand at the annual Ongwandiva Trade Fair, a premium event in that country, where prospective students swarm, in search of quality education institutions.

The reception, according to the marketing team, was beyond expectation, as students took a particular liking into the University's facilities, vision and mission, despite most of them having known little to nothing about the Professor Ezekiel Handiwangu Gutu institution.

However, the insightful presentations made shed light on the institution, igniting interest among the prospective students whose age varied from 16 – 60 years. This was encouraging, especially given the perception of the country in the region and surrounding blocks.

That image and perception of the country is changing, thanks much to Government and various stakeholders.

A representative from the ZEGU marketing department expressed satisfaction at the outcome of the Namibia recruitment trip.

"ZEGU was well represented at the Ongwande Trade Fair, in Namibia, as students in that country took great interest in our product, despite knowing little about the institution.

"With the grace of God, we managed to get 32 aspiring students who have already filled in their application forms, which is quite encouraging, as this is our maiden year at this fair and in this country for this premium fair," said the official.

Apart from the Ongwande Fair, the ZEGU team also made in-roads in other parts of the country after visits were also made to Windhoek and Ondanga Province, which are a sure and serious breeding ground if efforts in the country are going to be heightened.

No doubt, more of these foreign enrollment expeditions are going to be witnessed as the institution complements government's efforts in the internationalisation drive.
