Editorial Comment

The last quarter of the year 2022 witnessed several milestones being achieved, as the Zimbabwe Ezekiel Guti University (ZEGU) buckled up for a sound restructuring exercise that will witness a change in faculty numbers and subsequently the number of programmes on offer at the Bindura-based institution.

Coming on the back-drop of a successful 6th graduation ceremony, the last quarter of the year 2022 witnessed ZEGU firmly setting its sight on closing the curtains on a high in the various exercises and activities the institution has been investing its precious time on.

It is no secret that ZEGU's ambitious drive will see it achieving things that other institutions in the higher education sector fail to achieve over the same space and time, as leadership and staff are moving on the same wavelength.

Issues like "Internationalisation" have come to the fore in recent months with a trip to Namibia already made by delegates from the Marketing and International Affairs Department. The trip has yielded enormous results with tens of students showing a liking to ZEGU and its programmes, facilities, and what it generally stands for.

Come 2023, ZEGU expects to enroll a large chunk of international students not only from Namibia, but from across the region from nations like South Africa, Botswana, Zambia, and Tanzania, just to mention a few.

The year 2022 will, however, remain etched in our hearts as ZEGU marked its 10th Anniversary. It hasn't been easy, but the first decade of existence has come with its pros and cons.

To date, during this quarter, the institution has seen several projects taking shape. The new state-of-the-art administration block is almost complete, while the new arts block now only awaits commissioning and the library has been spruced up to match international standards to give that much-needed convenience to the student body.

Various faculties have repaid the faith of leadership by participating in both local and international forums and even going on to excel beyond belief.

Indeed, what we are witnessing at ZEGU is out of this world. Our strong Christian foundation has led the institution to grow from strength to strength.

Kudos to Professor James Chetsanga and his team.

Appreciation will always be rendered to the University Council and Senate for steering the ship toward the success the ZEGU fraternity is now enjoying.

Already, prospects for the year 2023 are high given the successes of this calendar year. There is much in store for both students and our cherished stakeholders, who continue to support ZEGU through rough, turbulent, and even good times.

From the NGAONE team: Wishing you all a Happy Christmas and a Prosperous New Year!!!

ZEGU opens new leaf

ZEGU, in partnership with the Female Students Network Trust, has broken new ground after the successful launch of the 'on-campus' rights watchdog officially called the Female Students Network Trust Club (FSNTC) on the 30th September 2022, as the university moves to kick-out sexual harassment, discrimination and cyberbullying, among other social ills, so as to make the campus a safe place for everyone.

University female students from across the globe have had to deal with the sometimes-unruly behaviour from sections of their opposite-sex colleagues and even other females alike, and in the worst-case scenario, adults who hold positions of authority; hence, the birth of FSNTC will enhance ZEGU's chances of turning the leaf on offenders, through the empowerment of the girl-child.

FSNTC will now act as the watchdog and mouthpiece of female students, while also conscientising students on various issues such as sexual harassment, the Cyber Security Bill, and a host of other important issues.

The 21st October 2022 will witness the orientation of the body's executive paving the way for the establishment to commence operations.

A total of 15 students, who were selected randomly were present to mark the milestone under the tutelage of the Dean of Students, Mrs. Machaka, who is also the Club president.

Other delegates who witnessed the spectacle came from the Female Students Network Trust (FSNT) and various ZEGU officials. FSNT is a feminist organisation that was founded in 2005.

It is a national organisation formed after wide consultations with female students in Tertiary Educational Institutions (TEIs) and various stakeholders. The goal of the organisation is to empower female students to challenge the multiple forms of discrimination and exclusion in TEIs.

IN solidarity with the globe's noble cause to stamp out Gender Based Violence (GBV)

ZEGU launched its own chapter of the Female Students Network Trust Club (FSNTC), this September, a symbol of commitment to creating a safe space for both students and staff members.
GBV has no place in society.

16 Days of Activism against Gender-based Violence

BNC recognises ZEGU's crème de la crème

In its quest to nurture a complete professional, the Zimbabwe Ezekiel Guti University (ZEGU) successfully organized an Information Technology (IT) education tour to one of the country's leading mining firms, Bindura Nickel Corporation (BNC), recently.

Certainly, there is no better way to expose students to state-of-the-art, latest, and trending technology in the industry.

Spurred by the window of opportunity availed by the partnership between ZEGU and BNC, respectively, students maneuvered the latter facilities acquiring knowledge and skills from professionals in various IT sectors such as Networking; Server Administration, Security Systems, and ERP Systems.

The BNC tour is in line with the Faculty of Health, Science and Technology's vision to produce a graduate with the latest practical skills, and also to close the skills gap between industry and universities.

ZEGU is actively implementing Education 5.0.

ZEGU, BNC partnership bears fruit

BINDURA Nickel Corporation (BNC) has lip up the mood at ZEGU's Bindura Campus by making a donation of 10-brand new laptops for the recent graduands who excelled by attaining First Class Degrees and Distinctions during the institution's 6th Graduation Ceremony held this September.

HP laptops had done justice to their studies and time at the Bindura-based university.

Fuser-Tech, a local, fast-rising Information and Communication Technology (ICTs) accessories firm, also chipped in with a laptop award for the Best Student in the ICTs category.

During the graduation ceremony that was graced by the ZEGU Chancellor, Professor Ezekiel Handinawangu Guti, a total of 400 students graduated from the institution's four (4) faculties namely the Faculty of Business, Economics, and Accounting; Faculty of Humanities, Education and Social Sciences; Faculty of Law, and the Faculty of Health, Sciences, and Technologies, respectively.

Of the total graduands, 235 were females.

ZEGU and BNC's partnership continues to promote the students' body, while more mutually beneficial initiatives continue to take shape.

ZEGU introduces Lifelong College

THE Zimbabwe Ezekiel Guti University (ZEGU)'s recently launched College of Lifelong Learning is geared to have a lasting impression on communities through the provision of skills-based learning that will equip individuals with the requisite knowledge on development.

ZEGU's College of Lifelong Learning has a catalogue of more than 60 Certificate and Diploma programmes that will be administered by the institution from the onset of the first Semester of this year.

Speaking in an interview with the NGAONE news crew, ZEGU Pro-Vice Chancellor, Professor Innocent Chirisa, expressed optimism at the success of the initiative given its core mandate of building communities and its vast portfolio of programmes at the exposal of students.

"It (College of Lifelong Learning) is structured as the seventh (7th) Faculty of the university in which various Certificates and Diplomas are offered, and these impart very important skills to the individuals, which also impact on the local communities.

"We offer Certificates in Stewardship, Financial Management, Auditing, Project Planning (implementation, monitoring and evaluation), and these also shape into various Diplomas which people can study within a year and a half," said Prof. Chirisa.

He added: "Once students acquire Diplomas, they can as well go towards registering for Degrees within ZEGU and elsewhere."

One of the most interesting aspects of the College of Lifelong Learning is that modules cumulatively lead to Diploma programmes.

Among many other aspects, the ZEGU College of Lifelong Learning will seek to focus on the vocational and skills dimensions of lifelong learning; recognise the complexity and multi-dimensional nature of the challenges faced by humanity calls for the restoration of a holistic vision of learning throughout life; make lifelong learning the governing principle of education policy and to offer people opportunities to learn throughout life, whatever their background or context, and proffer flexible learning options including online and distance learning, night and weekend courses, Summer University and Certificates and Diplomas, respectively, amongst a host of other beneficial issues.

Already, a number of enquiries have been successfully converted to enrollment have been recorded across country, as the nation warms up to the new game changer.

Both young and middle-aged prospective students have shown a keen interest in the initiative.

ZEGU remains committed to delivering the high standards set since its inception in May 2012.

Overall, ZEGU seeks to break-down barriers to educational opportunities for adult learners and skilled seekers, through opening of doors for individuals, communities and nations.

Research, entrepreneurship guru, sets foot at ZEGU

ZEGU is proud to play host to academic par-excellence, Professor Tendai Chimucheka, who is set to engage academics and students on various issues including research and entrepreneurship.

Prof. Chimucheka, who is an Associate Professor: Business Management (University of Fort Hare) brings an unrivaled wealth of experience and knowledge to the fold given his passion for research and community engagement in the field of Business Management.

He holds a number of qualifications namely: Doctor of Commerce (2017), Master of Commerce in Business Management (2013), Bachelor of Commerce (Honours) in Business Management (2011), Bachelor of Commerce in Business Management, and Economics (2010), and a Post Graduate Diploma in Higher Education and Training.

Not only that, his sphere of influence has spread in HEIs, as he has published academic papers in peer-reviewed journals, presented academic papers at both national and international conferences, and has been invited on big occasions to deliver the keynote speech.

Prof Chimucheka's research prowess is renowned internationally given the fact that he is also a post Graduate research supervisor. His research interests dovetail with ZEGU's, as he is interested in (research) entrepreneurship, small business management, human resources management, strategic management, and financial management, among others.

ZEGU takes pleasure in exposing its academics and students to professionals who leave a lasting impression on the institution's fabric, and that being said and done, Prof. Chimucheka suits the bill.

PRESS STATEMENT

As the year 2022 draws to an end, the Zimbabwe Ezekiel Guti University (ZEGU) is already looking forward to a prosperous 2023 given that the University has already made tremendous inroads in issues with regards to the ongoing Restructuring exercise, Internationalisation, Enrollment, migration to Education 5.0 and Infrastructure Development at our Bindura campus.

Resources have been directed to the core of the university's operations to bring out the best of its students in a safe environment, which emanates from Christian values, which form the foundation and substance of this institution.

It also has to be noted that this is in line with the implementation of Education 5.0.

The University Senate with the concurrence of the University Council, has approved the restructuring of the existing faculties and the creation of other faculties to bring the total number of faculties to six (6) from four, previously.

Hence, in a broader sense, ZEGU's restructuring is meant to align the University Faculties, Departments, and Degree Programmes to the dictates of the Ministry-approved Heritage Based Education 5.0 philosophy.

The intention is to develop over 200 Undergraduate and Postgraduate degree programmes between now and August 2023 that will be submitted to ZIMCHE (Zimbabwe Council for Higher Education) for Accreditation.

This represents good fortunes for the institution, as restructuring will edify the institution in terms of increasing enrollment figures and also mean an increase in our staffing numbers, especially in the academic arm.

ZEGU remains committed to recruiting professional lecturers and non-teaching staff at all costs so as to continue improving the brand of the institution which is continually getting rave reviews on a variety of formal and non-formal platforms. This is justified by the corporate sector's continued association and confidence in the brand and sponsor.

It is also prudent that we take this opportunity to congratulate the visionary and founder of ZEGU, Chancellor Professor Ezekiel Handinawangu Guti, as it is this year that the institution marked its 10th Anniversary, a milestone which was achieved through faith and hard work from employees anchored by the support from the sponsor and our valued stakeholders.

ZEGU remains grateful to its sponsor for the support throughout the 10 years, that the institution has been operational.

It is my pleasure to inform the nation that throughout the 10-year period, a number of learning centres have been established across the country in places like Harare, Chitungwiza and Chipinge, respectively. Furthermore, inroads have also been made to open other learning centres in Bulawayo which remains an urgent issue and in Chiredzi, where a number of students have already filled up their enrollment forms. This goes a long way to show how the country is already warming up to ZEGU.

Beyond the country's borders, the Internationalisation drive is already in full swing. ZEGU's footprint is now visible after having made contact with prospective students in a fellow southern African state, Namibia. Students in that country have already committed to enrolling with ZEGU this coming semester, next year, when the new academic calendar year commences.

A lot of initiatives that will witness the institution getting more foreign students from around the region and continent, at large, have already been activated.

Despite ZEGU's notable few years in operation, so to speak, as compared to the market and competition, it goes without saying that our achievements are already seeing us regularly rubbing shoulders with institutions that have existed for many decades at various stages and platforms.

Our faculties have scored milestones. Case in point, our Moot Court teams have defied the odds by repeatedly participating at many Moot Court competitions and achieving the unimaginable results, while our students, as individuals have been participating in international forums, quarterly.

This goes a long way to show the type of professionals being nurtured and churned out by ZEGU.

ZEGU remains committed to abiding by the laws of the land, as the institution aims to produce outstanding leaders who are born again, spirit-filled and God fearing, with dignity and integrity.

I thank you.

Research, a core pillar of development

There are many core elements to the mission of a great university. Teaching would seem the most obvious, but "Research" is also equally important.

Today, ZEGU resumes capacity building of its staff by inducting a Research Training workshop targeted at equipping employees with research abilities, as a way of upholding one of the Education 5.0 pillars.

Investing in research is a must for all modern universities, as its impacts are profound.

Through this initiative, ZEGU staff can be well-equipped even to formulate community beneficial projects in the mining community of Bindura and the nation at large.

Facilitating the training is renowned Professor Bonface Chisaka, who is on Contact Visit at ZEGU at the present time.

ZEGU's two (2) Pro Vice Chancellors, Professor Evelyn Garwe and Professor Innocent Chirisa, respectively, were fellow facilitators at the research training which took place at the institution's campus in Bindura.

A total of 51 staff members took part in the training session which was attended by potential PhD candidates from both the Academic and non-academic staff.

The Research Training comes hard on the heels of the Customer Care training workshop for staff held recently.

Spreading wings, inevitable

IN its efforts to bring education to the door step of marginalised communities, the Zimbabwe Ezekiel Guti University (ZEGU) is embarking on a spirited enrollment outreach that will see visits to Chitungwiza, Chipinge and Chiredzi materialising.

It has been long-time coming for the Chancellor Professor Ezekiel Handiwangu Guti-led institution having made initial contact with the Chipinge and Chiredzi communities (on education matters) almost a year ago, a move which saw hundreds of prospective students pre-registering for enrollment.

However, God's time is the best and true to that, the ZEGU teams are preparing for a cross country outreach, with Chitungwiza, Chiredzi and Chipinge being the destinations after being previously identified as Districts where the university stands good ground of establishing learning centres.

This will enable staff members to meet and interact with school leavers and even the working-class on which programmes they can enrol for during the on-going March & August 2023 Intake.

Those willing to further their education have been dealt a great treat, as ZEGU has already introduced a number of Masters programmes namely, Master of Arts in Theology and Religious Studies; Master of Science in Development Studies; Master of Education Leadership and Management; Master of Education in Psychology, and the Master of Education in Sociology, respectively.

With a number of developments in the institution already reported on, the establishment of the LifeLong College will certainly stand out as a life-line for people in local communities to further their education.

Hence; communities of Chitungwiza, Chipinge and Chiredzi can ride on the newly introduced Lifelong College, which the ZEGU Pro-Vice Chancellor Professor Innocent Chirisa coined "... a vehicle, through which ZEGU brings to local communities the aspect of learning..., for personal development."

Thousands who might have failed to make the required grades for higher education, as there is a plethora of Certificates that prospective students can choose from and enroll.

Momentum is already high at the targeted sites with some prospective students from praising the institution for remembering their communities.

A prospective student, looking to study with ZEGU, who spoke on condition of anonymity expressed enthusiasm at having ZEGU in their community.

Restructuring exercise to spur ZEGU's growth trajectory

"The Restructuring is meant to align the University Faculties, Departments and Degree Programmes to the dictates of the Ministry-approved Heritage Based Education 5.0 philosophy."

Registrar Mr Chinyemba

The Zimbabwe Ezekiel Guti University (ZEGU) has embarked on an ambitious restructuring programme that will see the higher education institution offering over 200 Undergraduate and Postgraduate degree programmes, Registrar Mr. Innocent Chinyemba has said.

The restructuring is in line with the implementation of Education 5.0. The University Senate with the concurrence of the University Council has approved the restructuring of the existing faculties and the creation of other faculties to bring the total number of faculties to six (6).

The restructuring exercise will see the formation of new faculties like the Faculty of Law, Business Intelligence, and Economics being headed by Dean Dr Ellen Sithole; Faculty of Engineering, Health and Veterinary Services (Dean yet to be announced); Faculty of Artefactual Design and Futures (Acting Dean) Professor Innocent Chirisa; Faculty of Education, Governance, Theology and Leadership headed by Dean Dr Godfrey Jakachira; Faculty of Science Technology, Agriculture and Food Systems Development headed by (Acting Dean) Justin Makota, and the Faculty of Heritage, Humanities and Societal Advancement headed by Dean Dr William Muchono, respectively.

Commenting on the restructuring exercise that is set to take effect from the 1st December 2022, Reg. Chinyemba said the exercise was in line with Government dictates.

"The Restructuring is meant to align the University Faculties, Departments and Degree Programmes to the dictates of the Ministry-approved Heritage Based Education 5.0 philosophy.

"Restructuring has resulted in the unbundling of the existing 4 Faculties to the creation of 6 Faculties.

"The intention is to develop over 200 Undergraduate and Postgraduate degree programmes between now and August 2023 that we will submit to ZIMCHE (Zimbabwe Council for Higher Education) for Accreditation," he said.

Previously, ZEGU had only four faculties namely the Faculty of Law; Faculty of Health, Sciences and Technology; Faculty of Business, Economics and Accounting, and the Faculty of Humanities, Education and Social Sciences, respectively.

With the new faculties expected to usher new programmes at the Bindura-based university, enrollment levels are expected to increase.

Chinyemba expressed optimism about the university's state of preparedness for an influx of students, come the year 2023.

"We have guaranteed financial support to gradually increase the teaching and learning facilities as we roll over the Restructuring exercise.

"Currently we have reassigned the Faculty Deans that were presiding over the old Faculties to the newly established Faculties as stated earlier," added Chinyemba.

ZEGU is one of Zimbabwe's fastest-rising higher education institutions. The university recently held its 6th graduation ceremony, where over 400 Graduands were capped by Chancellor Professor Ezekiel Guti, this September.

The university has established a well-to-do campus in Harare, and learning centres in Chitungwiza, Chipinge and Chiredzi, respectively.

"The news of having an institution of the magnitude of ZEGU in our community is of great importance, especially for us (youths), who have just finished their A' level studies. At times it's too costly for our peasant farmer parents to afford sending us to universities in Harare and other major cities across the country.

"I want to applaud ZEGU for coming up with an initiative, which will not only lead to formation of Learning centres, but also well-to-do campuses in the future," said the recent school leaver.

Another businessman, who is also a member of the ZAOGA FiF International Ministries church said the institution's planned visits will also aid business personnel in different sectors of the economy as they can enroll with the institution in the near the near future and get to run their businesses professionally.

The outreach by ZEGU will see marketing teams visit Chitungwiza, Chipinge and Chiredzi, respectively. However, efforts will not end there, but will also culminate in visits to Bulawayo, Matabeleland, the Midlands, respectively.

Provisions are also being made for visits to other areas not mentioned above.

YOUTHS from across the country filled up the giant auditorium at AMFCC from the 20th – the 23rd October 2022 for the ZAOGA FiF National Youth Conference, on the outskirts of the capital city, Harare.

Running under the theme: Moulding Leaders of Today and Tomorrow with Good Character; #YouAintSeenNothingYet, the NYC was a resounding success, as the youth received life-transforming teachings from the church leadership.

Over 4000 youths from across the country graced the event.

ZEGU takes pride in being one of the exhibitors at the occasion, which witnessed the university's stand turning into a bee-hive, literally, as frequent visits from the thousands who thronged the venue, was the order of the day.

Grant Writing training for staff members

ZEGU is intensifying capacity building programmes for staff members, with the recent training imparted to the expectant employees hinging on Grant Writing, a training facilitated by expert, Dr Eunice Goshami.

In order to deliver excellent service to its ever-growing students body and publics, ZEGU is moving towards fully empowering its human resource base with various skills that will not only benefit individuals, but the institution and country at large.

Some of the key take-away lessons include: Failing to work with others is also planning to fail the project; Impress the funder; Take time to plan what you are writing about; Have proper tools to prepare the grant proposal, and Understand the requirements, while a Monitoring and Evaluation plan can surely add weight, amongst a cocktail of initiatives needed to see the grant being approved.

Over 30 staff members participated in the training.

Prof. Chetsanga champions Africa's Industrialisation in new book

Back in 2014, Prof. Chetsanga penned a piece titled: "Crying Out for an Industrialised Economy", an article published in one of the country's leading daily papers.

Like the academic par-excellence he is, the former and founding Director of the Scientific and Industrial Research and Development Centre (SIRDC) firmly believes that Research and Development programmes feed into industrialization, which in turn can be made to finance and nurture science and technology initiatives.

Prof. Chetsanga has followed up his yesterday-year article of 2014 with a fully-fledged published book, "Africa, Industrialising for Economic Prosperity: My Life and Work in Science (2022)", which has been classified in the premier publishing house, Themba Books and selected among the stable's 'Top Four Latest Books'.

The official launch has been penciled for a date to be named this November.

The ZEGU fraternity is grateful for having you (Prof. Chetsanga) in the fold and for your astute leadership, which fosters the development needed by the institution, as we celebrate our 10th Anniversary.

Once again, Congratulations Prof Chetsanga on the publishing milestone!!!

The ZEGU family congratulates Vice-Chancellor, Professor Christopher Chetsanga on the successful publishing of his recent offering, an insightful book titled: "Africa, Industrialising for Economic Prosperity: My Life and Work in Science (2022)".

ZEGU - transformative and disruptive in the spirit of Education 5.0.

ZEGU takes on Zim's finest

The Zimbabwe Ezekiel Guti University (ZEGU) continues to take pride in its student body which continues to fly the institution's flag high, locally and internationally, if the ongoing annual Moot Court sponsored by the International Committee for the Red Cross (ICRC) and Red Crescent Movement in partnership with Raul Wallenberg Institute being held at the Rainbow Towers hotel, in Harare, is anything to go by.

The competition brings together law students from the four universities offering Law studies and these include the Midlands State University (MSU), Great Zimbabwe University (GZU), University of Zimbabwe (UZ), and ZEGU, respectively.

Three (3) ZEGU Bachelor of Laws Honours

Degree (LLB) students are taking part in the competition, which will see winners having the chance of competing in Tanzania, this year.

Not only has ZEGU become a perennial participant in such academic events, but the institution has excelled in recent years.

The ZEGU family remains supportive of its representatives at the Moot Court till its curtains fall this Friday when participants will go head-to-head at the High Court of Zimbabwe, as participants try to book a plane ticket to Tanzania.

ZEGU is represented by Ordain Majiri, Tadiwa Chipunza, and Takudzwa Chinyemba, respectively.

ZELSA president flies ZEGU's flag high in Amsterdam

CHRIS Takudzwa Zindi proudly represented the Zimbabwe Ezekiel Guti University (ZEGU) and the nation at large at the recently ended Experimental Moot Court in the Netherlands from the 22nd - 26th November 2022.

Selected to represent Zimbabwe on the merits of being an orator par-excellence, Zindi, a 2.2 level Law student at ZEGU fully utilised his God-given talent as a young prospective Lawyer in the making, to make his mark in Amsterdam, where he was partnered with another Zimbabwean from the University of Zimbabwe (UZ) named Rebecca Vimbai Jambo.

Speaking in an interview, Zindi, who is also the Zimbabwe Ezekiel Guti University Law Society Association (ZELSA) pointed out that it was huge learning curve, as students were taught on a number of issues critical for development. "The trip was beneficial in that it gave me an insight into how proceedings in the International Criminal Court are done.

"How research is supposed to be done and above all, how much flesh a Lawyer should put in order to not be found in contempt of court whilst making the mission clear," said Zindi.

Furthermore, Zindi exuded confidence in his maiden showing in an international moot court appearance.

"The outcome of the core visit to the European country was we excelled in our endeavor and we were arguably part of the best orators.

"The judges themselves were impressed with the submissions and the experience. We basically performed well and we were impressive," he added.

Zindi's maiden European Moot Court saw him flying to South Africa where he boarded a flight to Kenya before connecting to Amsterdam on a trip that was financially sponsored by the Zimbabwe Assemblies of God Africa (ZAOGA) FiF Ministries International and the hosts in Amsterdam.

The Experimental Moot Court saw students from across the globe partake in the 6-day spectacle.

The young Zindi expressed gratitude to the ZEGU administration for the life-changing opportunity, and also implored the higher education institution to proffer more platforms like his European adventure.

ZEGU remains committed to providing career launch pads for its students in the various faculties at the Bindura-based institution.

Early Xmas Treat

ZEGU students delivered a 'near-perfect' Christmas treat for the University after coming out runners-up in the Transparency International Zimbabwe (TIP) National Corruption and Human Rights Moot Court competition held in Mutare, as the nation observed the Anti-Corruption Day on the 9th December 2022.

The competition was organized and sponsored by TIZ in partnership with institutions of note such as RAOUL Wallenberg Institute, Sweden Sverige, the National Prosecuting Authority of Zimbabwe, and the Zimbabwe Anti-Corruption Commission, respectively.

ZEGU was represented by Tadiwa Chipunza (Captain), Takudzwa Chinyemba, Pettina Mabhugu, Geoffrey Maenzanise, Tanatswa Rupedze, and team coach Rugare Kozanai, respectively.

The team had to literally battle with their counterparts from well-to-do institutions namely the University of Zimbabwe (UZ) and the Great Zimbabwe University (GZU), the eventual winners. ZEGU has been active in both local and international Moot Court appearances, with one of its students, Chris Zindi representing the institution and country at an Experimental Moot held at the International Criminal Court, in the Netherlands, recently.

Transparent International Zimbabwe is a non-profit, non-partisan local chapter of the global movement against corruption.

The 2022 Anti-Corruption Day ran under the theme: UNCAT At 20: Uniting the World Against Corruption.

Namibia Calling

PRESENTED with an opportunity to spread the University's wings beyond the country's borders, ZEGU actively participated at the recently held Ongwendiva Trade fair in Namibia, which saw several students in the country jumping at the opportunity to enroll in Zimbabwe's fastest-rising higher education institution.

The ZEGU exhibition stand at the fair was a marvel, as it serenaded students, both young and working class alike.

Most visitors at the stand admittedly knew little about the University, but after presentations were made it got most of them interested in learning more about 'us', which was quite encouraging given the perception of the country in some sections of the region and surrounding blocks.

Namibia presents a window of opportunity to spur ZEGU's Internationalisation drive as the warm and encouraging feedback from prospective students in the country signaled better things to come, especially at this point in time when the Government of Zimbabwe (GoZ) is encouraging Universities to internationalise.

It won't be a surprise to see the ZEGU team touring the country in the near future.

The Chancellor Professor Ezekiel Handinawangu Guti-led institution has lined up several international tours in its quest to fulfill its purpose of producing outstanding professionals. Enrollment for the first semester of 2022 is still in progress.

Green Buildings, panacea to climate change fight

EastGate, Harare's classic green building.

GREENING and adaptation of sustainable energy sources is a sure way of winning the climate change fight, Green Building Council of Zimbabwe (GBCZ) Board member and Zimbabwe Ezekiel Guti University (ZEGU) Pro-Vice Chancellor Professor Innocent Chirisa, has said.

Responding to a plethora of congratulatory messages upon his appointment to the Green Building Council of Zimbabwe (GBCZ), Prof Chirisa opined that the time for action was now; hence, the nation and individuals should prioritise sustainable energy. "...In environmental studies, the greatest enemy to sustainability is especially carbon in the air. It must be managed, if not put under our feet; hence, carbon sequestration.

"As we speak, the earth is warming up fast and furious. "Greening is about making sure that vegetation is planted or kept acting as carbon sinks. Secondly, it is about advocating for cleaner energy use – wind, solar amongst a host of other sources," said Prof. Chirisa. With an estimated 40 percent (%) of global warming emanating from the construction and building sector, Governments across the globe have been called to action, as the scourge of climate change continues to threaten human existence.

Prof Chirisa implored construction firms and individuals to be climate conscious when going about their chores, so as to minimise the negative impacts of climate change, which are mostly human made.

"The subject is about managing climate change impacts. When we build, we can imagine how many trees we destroy to burn just the bricks. How much heat is needed to produce any material that you see on that building you are moving out of or getting into?," he added.

Speaking in an interview with this publication, Alexander Millin, immediate past president of Real Estate Institution of Zimbabwe president bemoaned the slow uptake of green buildings by the construction, but, however, expressed optimism given trends transpiring in the sector. "The uptake (green buildings construction) has been slow. However, over the last five years there has been some renewed interest in this phenomenon.

"In my opinion, to the following; a lack of awareness on the benefits of the use of green building technology; uncertainty as to the effectiveness and efficiencies that could be derived from the adoption of such technology, and implementation costs," opined Millin.

He added that despite the slow uptake of green buildings in the construction sector, players in the sector remain committed to see through the transition.

"Yes, there is a push for going the "green building way". However, more needs to be done through regular awareness programmes for all stakeholders in the built environment," he added.

According to the real estate expert, approximately 10 per cent of Harare's buildings are already green buildings.

"It is encouraging to note that approximately 20 – 25% of the older buildings are in the process of retrofitting green building technology, especially in renewable energy such as solar. This includes implementation of recycling of materials in particular, grey water," said Millin.

Recently, ZEGU lived to its promise of carrying about its duties to the community by following up the solarisation of the Bindura campus by installing solar power at its Harare campus, as the institution goes green and has its say on the climate fight.
